She turned the TV off when the programme finished.

My favourite leisure time activity is playing football.

People watch TV more nowadays than they did in the past.

I wanted to go to the shops but they were closed.

Unlike my brother, I like watching TV.

We need at least four tomatoes, no less.

We invited a lot of people to the party. I hope they come.

Living in the country is much safer than living in a big city.

There's been a growing number of accidents. The number is increasing.

I sometimes have to do more responsible jobs like writing letters.

Safety is very important. We don't want any more accidents.

You have to know the rules before you can play chess.

We enjoyed ourselves in spite of the little problem.

In this edition of Europe Today we are going to look at Slovakia.

We have to accept that he's gone and continue with our lives.

High-speed car racing can lead to a lot of injuries.

You should buy that blouse. After all, that's what we came here for.

So you think he's a bad pupil? – Of course not, he's very intelligent.

Nobody was injured in the accident so we didn't need the doctor.

It's pointless cooking that. No one will eat it.

There are lots of problems so we'll focus on just one to start with.

It's dangerous to go car racing without a helmet.

= idiot

People who cycle to work are in the minority here. Only a few people do it.
